though sufficiently vague in its wording, states that the matter has been placed in the hands of the Crown Solicitor with a view to the equal enforcement of agreements upon all sales of Government land. There is some consulation here for landholders in Kowloon and the hill districts, as an equal enforcement will naturally include the cuforcement of agreements which bind the Government to do certain things, as well as the performance by lease-holders of covenants entered into. It is a notorious fact that the Government have shown an unscemly eagerness to sell land, while their anxiety to make roads and otherwise complete their part of the contract has been conspicuously absent. Any opening up of this question, therefore, through the means usually adopted by the Orown Solicitor, will have the effect of throwing light upon Goods per Occased undelivered after this the obligations of the Government towards Crown lessees, as well as of ventilating the question what legal covenants leaseholders may be compelled to perform under existing conditions. The idea is so novel, that all responsibility on the part of the Government, save that of collecting Crown rent, may have been altogether overlooked by the Executive. No onesided view of the case, however, is likely to be adopted by the Chief Justice, who has the comforting habit of looking at both sides of an agreement. In the abstract, and granting that no fault can be discovered in the attitude of the Government, persons. who have fulfilled their obligations may possibly feel aggrieved at the default of others. But even as a matter of policy, would compulsory house-building tend to procure tenants for the tenements at present unoccupied? And would the increase of empty houses furnish any addition to the rates paid into the Tressury? We do not say that the application of a rule such as that of compulsory building might not be, at certain periods, most beneficial to the community: At present and under existing conditions the wisdom of such a policy is more than questionable. If, however, the Government is burning with a desireto sall forth an exposure of the manner inwhich leaseholders have been dealt with generally, and of the strange shortsighted policy adopted by the Crown in reference to land questions nothing is more likely to attain that object than the proceedings promised affecting the equal enforcement of agreements upon all sales of Government land.' Now that nearly overy piece of land in the Colony has been sold, and the Crown rents have been raised, there is very small chance for land speculation, and the Home system, of granting the lease whenever a house is built, might with advantage be adopted in Hongkong.

such a diversity of opinion, with regard not only to the actual meaning of the clause an it stands but to the intentional meaning. was shown that the discussion of the Bill and placed on board ship at Hongkong had to be somewhat abruptly terminated. the 8th April, with Mails for the prices, and the full amount allowed for and the members separated to think over. the subject. The clause is certainly ambiguous. It sets forth that a place shall be deemed to be opened, kept or used as a common gaming house or for the purpose of a lottery when gambling is one of the main and principal objects for which the said place is opened, kept or used, although such place is also used as an ordinary social club and the public at large have not sort oess thereto. Read alone this clause would imply that it is the latention of the Government to suppress pot only professional gambling, that is gambling conducted by persons who, by the law of probabilities are bound to profit thereby, but ordinary gambling of a pronounced character, such gambling as is connected with poker, baccarat and perhaps some Chinese games, where the chances are equal but where a great deal of money may be wen or lest and an incalculable amount of mischief done. But clause 3 follows the definition clause in which a common gaming house is defined to mean a place where mnequal-chance gambling is carried on. The question arises -Is clause 3 governed by the definition clause or does it extend the meaning of the latter. A good deal may be said in lavour of either contention, as the wording is ambiguous. In discussing the Gambling Bill on previous occasions, we adopted the .view that the gambling spoken of in section 3 was conditioned by the definition of common gaming house, and we argued on obtain a favourable decision on this point, on which a commission is charged, I do ;; as against helders of unoccupied land, is one not think it would pay people to open gamof those questions which would necessitate bling clubs. If we are not mintaken, a decision intended that a common gaming house shall Point and steamers in Harbour may be of the Supreme Court was obtained on this include any place where any game of unpoint many years ago, whereby it was beld squal chance is carried on; and we maintained Letters from Kowloon Point may be that the Government could not turn round it would be unwise to run the risk of defeat and enforce the building clause, after hav. ling this intention by introducing a clause ing accepted payment of Crown rent for which states that such gambling must be years from the lessee. At all events it was one of the main and principal objects for deemed advisable, after this decision, to which the place is opened. If however, stamps by writing the word stamped across give six months notice to the lessee of the clause 3 is independent, if it refers to intention to enforce the clause. of a lucrative character without infringing been adjourned to Friday, 10th inst. the letter of the law; The great o jection to this clause is that if its provisions were rigorously enforced even such places as the Hongkong Caub might be brought within the scope of the Bill, for it might be proved that gambling, although of a comparatively harmless kind, is one of the main and principal objects for which the place is opened. But this is a risk that must be run It is impossible to construct a law which will draw a practical distinction between relatively-harmless and reckless gambling. We must rely on the discretion the police who administer the law and the intelligence of the inagistrate who applies it. The danger of respectable clubs suffering is very small. The great difficulty is in obtaining a conviction over against those which are notorious gambling resorts, so powerful is the influence exercised by the wealthy gambling fraternity. The new bill, will not uproot gambling. The most that we can expect is that it will put some check on an evil, which, if unrestricted, will spread all over the colony and undermine our security and prosperity. It is the duty of the Government to make this check as effective as possible. The Bill before the Council is the result of an honest at tempt, to do a part of the work; and if it is cleared of a few ambiguities, and the remaining part of the work, the administration of the law, is conscientiously carried out, gambling may be partially scotched, although not killed. Perhaps the ambiguity that attaches to section 3 might be removed by the insertion of the word "also, so that the clause would read ;--- A place shall also be deemed to be opened. &a.' This would show that the object of the clause is to widen and not to restrict the definition of a common gaming house.

DARING ROBBERY AT THE

HUNGKONG HOTEL __ A daring and extensive robbery was perpetrated at the Llongkong Hotel early this morning. A bedroom occupied by Mr and Mrs Blacklock was entered while the occupother subjects. The Indian inilitary ants wore aslesp, and articles of jewellery &c. of the value of nearly $3,000 wore stolen. The theft was discovered about 8.30 this morning. Mest of the articles stolen, including three diamond rings and a number carnivals of blood for which Dahomey is of gold ornaments of various kinds, had been laid on a dressing table on the previous night. A dispatch box, in which £20 each, was also taken. Some silver articles when were lying on the table were not taken. A travelling bag had been removed from the room and ransacked on the verandah, where it was found in the morning. One of the doors opening on the verandali was left part y open during the night and a heavy chair was placed at the back of it. The thief, it is supposed, having reached the verandah by climbing up the scaffolding at the new portion of the building, entered by the partly open door. Mrs Blacklock had been up several times during the night tending her hugband, who is an invalid, but she did not miss the valuables till half-past eight this morning. The police were of course informed at once, but before that the thief may have succeeded in escaping to the woods. A BOY'S COMPOSITION: The following is a copy of what purports to be a genuine composition on Breathing, written by a boy in a Yorkshire school :- Breath is made of air. If it wasn't for our breath we should die when we slept. Our breath keeps the life a going through our noss when we are asleep. Boys that stay in a room all day should not breathe. They should wait outdoors. Boys in a room make carbonicide. Oarbonicide is poisoner than mad dogs. A heap of soldiers was in a black hole in India, and a carbonicide got in and killed nearly every one before the morning. Girls kill the breath with corsets that squeeze the diagram. Girls can't run or holler like boys, because their diagram is squeezed too much. - Exchange.
